Members of Fair Board Point Out
How Helpful County Aid
Would Be.

WILL MEET HERE SATURDAY

Boosters of Annual Exhibit Make Many Personal Sacrifices to Make it Possible.

The first meeting of the board of the Rush County Fair Association will be held in the court house tomorrow, and plans for the coming fair, which will be held this year August 20, 21, 22 and 23, will be discussed.

Officials of the Fair Association are hoping to make this year's fair better than any in recent years. They are lamenting the fact that they can not persuade the county council to give them an appropriation of twelve hundred dollars which they are allowed and to which they are entitled.

They declare that they could give the people of Rush county a much better fair if they were given the appropriation from the county. With that amount, fair officials say, they could make some much needed repairs at the fair grounds, and in addition could guarantee a better fair from every angle, because with that additional amount they could make the premiums larger in all events, and attract much better entrants.

The fair board has been making a strenuous fight for this appropriation for the last few years. A few years ago the members of the board had the county council "keyed up" to about the right point, when one councilman suggested that it was not legal to make such an appropriation.

A member of the fair board hurried to Indianapolis that very day and obtained an opinion from the attorney general in regard to the legality of such act. The attorney general said the law provided for an appropriation of a certain per cent of the taxable property for promoting county fairs, and that fair associations were entitled to it. But the law makes it purely optional with the county council in that manner, not enough members would vote for the appropriation to make it possible.

Members of the fair board are making personal sacrifices every year in order to insure a good county fair for the people of Rush county. They say they are willing to devote their time to the enterprise if they are given moral and financial assistance to which they are entitled.

Members of the board do not only devote their time, which is valuable, but in some instances use their own resources to promote the interests of the fair. One example of this may be cited. A member of the board furnishes three teams of horses each year absolutely free of charge to do the work that is required during the fair. There are many similar examples.

It is recalled that it is no small matter to arrange for the county fair. Members of the board have to spend their time traveling to nearby fairs to bring concessions, exhibitors and fast horses here.

THE SAME TWO.

The Decatur Herald says: Edwin M. Lee and Horace Stillwell of this State signed the call for a third party convention at Chicago. Mr. Lee is best remembered by the Republicans of Indiana for his persistent and unsuccessful efforts to secure an appointment from President Taft and Mr. Stillwell's fame as an Indiana politician rests largely upon his reputation as the leader of the wet forces of Madison county.

BOYS ENTERTAIN MOTHERS

Parents of Boy Scouts Guests at Camp Today.

The mothers of the Boy Scouts of the Main Street Christian Sunday school were the boys' guests at their summer camp on the Jake Parrish farm, northeast of the city, today. The mothers were hauled out to the camp on a hay wagon by Mr. Parrish. The boys are enjoying their first outing as an organization immensely. The Rev. C. M. Yocum stays with the boys during the day, and at night, C. E. Walden, the scoutmaster, is their guardian. They are along the river and can enjoy all sorts of sports of the season.

THIEF DISCARDS A PART OF TOOLS

Kit, Identified as Part of Lot Taken From Arbuckle Foundry, is Found.

THROWN ALONG THE RAILROAD

Section men on the C. H. & D. railroad yesterday found a kit of tools along the right of way between the mill race and Flatrock river. Having heard that a hundred dollars worth of tools had been stolen from Arbuckle & Company's foundry a few days ago, they took the kit to the foundry and turned them over.

The kit was identified as a part of the stolen property. There remained, however, only discarded tools that were of little value. They had evidently been thrown away, after the thief had selected the cream of the lot. The fact that the find was made along the railroad leads to the belief that the thief was a stranger, and was probably making a getaway on the freight when he threw the tools aside. The robbery occurred some time between last Saturday night and Monday morning. When the foundry was opened Monday the theft was discovered. The tools belonged to a workman at the foundry.

POLICE SEARCHED FOR LAUREL GIRLS

William Schobin Appealed to Chief
McAllister to Find His Two Daughters.

ON WAY HOME FROM SEXTON

At the request of William Schobin of Laurel the police here last night searched for several hours in an effort to locate his two daughters, whom he thought were lost, but which later proved not to be the case. The two girls age ten and twelve had been visiting in Sexton and left there yesterday morning at six o'clock for their home in Laurel. When they did not arrive in Laurel Mr. Schobin became alarmed and called Chief McAllister and a search was started. The girls were driving a spotted pony and the rig was known to have passed through here. By telephoning to New Salem and Andersonville it was found they had gone through there and about nine o'clock word was received that they had arrived home safely.

Some of Valuable Articles to be Given

Being Displayed.

IN WILL G. MULNO'S WINDOW

Bills Announcing Bargains and Each Containing Number Will be Mailed Tonight.

The first "Big Wednesday" of the season, which will be next Wednesday, merchants believe, will be a big day in Rushville. The inducements that will be offered to attract people to Rushville to do their shopping, and to be entertained, will doubtless bring a large crowd of people to Rushville.

A new plan for the popular bargain day is to be tried. Bills on which the members of the Retail Merchants Association announce their special bargains for the day will each be numbered. Some of these numbers will correspond to numbers on the articles to be given away free by each merchant in the association.

The bills will be mailed tonight and will go out over the rural routes tomorrow. When a person receives a bill by mail, it should be saved until the bargain day, as it is likely to be one of the numbers which will win a valuable prize.

A portion of the articles are on display in William G. Mulno's show window, and in front of his store. The glance at them is sufficient to prove that the merchants in the Association do not intend to select the cheapest article which they have in stock.

A large and beautiful lawn swing is one of the things which some lucky person will win in Rushville "Big Wednesday." A trimmed hat, a four dollar pair of shoes, a silver fruit tray, a tea kettle and coffee pot, a three dollar hat and numerous other things are to be given away. More of the articles will be displayed later.

The visitors here that day will be entertained in the afternoon and night with a band concert, and free tickets to the motion picture shows will be given by members of the Merchants Association.

AGED MAN FOUND FATALLY HURT

Garmanus Miller of Near Morristown is Hit by Big Four Train and May Not Live.

TRAIN CREW MAKES THE FIND

Injured Man's Chances Impaired by Removal to Brother's Home on County Line.

Garmanus Miller, age forty-five, of near Morristown, better known to his friends as "Abe Martin," who was found along the Big Four railroad near Shelbyville yesterday probably fatally injured, last night was removed to the home of his brother, Thomas Miller, living on the Rush-Shelby county line, a short distance north of Gwynneville.

It is the general belief that Miller was struck by a Big Four train. He was in a horrible condition when found along the track. He was very little improved today, and the fear was expressed that it would not be well to move him to his brother's home. There is small chance for his recovery.

No one knows what train struck the man, but according to the report of Conductor Rhodes in charge of the freight he must have been hit some time early in the morning, as his clothing was soaked with the rain which fell Wednesday night. It is thought by most people who are acquainted with the accident that he was struck by the fast passenger train which goes through Shelbyville about two o'clock in the morning.

The injuries received are almost sure to prove fatal, although he has a strong constitution and may live. He received a bad fracture at the base of the skull, a dislocated shoulder, and the middle finger of his left hand is cut off at the first joint. Besides all of these injuries he is terribly bruised about the body and is internally hurt.

It is believed that, worn out by his daily work, he was not able to sleep last night and though he would stroll out along the track until he became sleepy, and that, while out there, he sat on the rail and fell asleep and was not awakened by the approach of the train which hit him, inflicting the severe injuries that may cause his death.

It is said that Mr. Miller had the liquor habit, but according to the statements of Charles Thompson, who was the last man to see him last night, he was not drinking. Thompson says he saw Miller as he was going across the Big Four bridge to the fatal spot where he was hit by the train. Mr. Miller is probably better known here by the sobriquet of "Abe Martin," which had been given him by some of his friends.

He has two brothers, Clint and Thomas of near Gwynneville, two other brothers, Ross Miller, of Birmingham, Ala., and Rufus Miller, of Altmont, Kas., and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Loggan and Mrs. Flora Beckner, both of near Morristown.

GRATEFUL TO FRIENDS.

Andrew Moore and family, father and brothers and sisters respectively of the late Sheriff James M. Moore of Shelbyville, who was a native of this county, are very grateful for the kindness shown them during their bereavement by members of the three lodges—the Owls, Odd Fellows and Red Men—of which the deceased was a member, members of the Shelby County Bar Association, Shelby county officials and friends and neighbors. They desire to express their thanks for the many beautiful floral offerings.

JUMPS IN TIME TO ESCAPE

Ralph Burton in "Near" Accident
While Riding Bicycle.

Ralph Burton, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burton of East Ninth street, had a close call from a serious accident this morning while riding a bicycle. The little boy was going north in Main street and failed to see a horse driven by W. A. Jones coming out of the alley by the Kramer meat market until almost on it. Mr. Jones stopped the horse and the boy jumped from the wheel in time to escape injury. The bicycle landed under the horse but was not damaged.

TALK OF CRIME AT ANDERSONVILLE

Rumor That Burning of Old Shriner
House Was of Incendiary Origin is Circulated.

ANOTHER OFFENSE IS CITED

There is no direct evidence that the Shriner House was set on fire, but that some one willfully tore the concrete blocks from under the Cartmel house is beyond question, says the Andersonville Herald. Either is a crime in the eyes of the law and the perpetrators of the one is as guilty as the other. Too much of the destruction of property of others has been winked at. Some one will repeat too late some of these times.

In accusing anyone of a crime one must first discover a motive. If those who think the Shriner fire was the work of an incendiary will point out the motive and show the place where the lightning struck that night we will believe. It is easy to accuse a heinous crime like that but mighty hard to produce evidence. A recent little incident that happened in town would go to show that one is often wrongfully accused when entirely innocent.

JUDGE MAKES UP CALENDAR

September Term of Court Will Have Few Cases of Any Great Import.

FEW NEW SUITS ARE FILED

Blair Cleaned up a Number of Old Cases During Last Term of Court.

If the calendar may be taken as any criterion, the opening fall term of the Rush circuit court in September, will be a quiet affair, as compared with the closing term of court before the summer vacation.

While in Rushville yesterday Judge Blair made up the calendar for the September term of court which opens Monday, September second. There were a number of cases left over from last term of court, which comprise the greater part of the calendar. Few new cases have been filed in court during the summer vacation thus far.

Judge Blair made a near record in wiping cases off the docket the last term of court, although there were several long trials. Few cases of any great import were left. There are no criminal cases to excite comment and few big civil suits. The court calendar, as made up yesterday, is as follows:

Sept. 2.—Calling dockets and issues.
Sept. 3.—All motion for new trials. Issues.
Sept. 4.—Williams vs. Nelson, et al.
Sept. 6.—Gross vs. Armstrong.
Sept. 6.—Brovine vs. Bell.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department, The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JULY 14.

THE SEED IN FOUR KINDS OF SOIL.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:1-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Receive with meekness the implanted word which is able to save your souls." James 1:21.

Jesus tells us plainly why he taught so much by means of parables (Matt. 13:10-13) viz., to teach the truth to those who sought it, and to hide it from those who refused to receive it. The truth had to be taught, hence the parable, that those to whom it was given to know the mysteries of the kingdom might know and understand but that to the others it might be hidden (Mark 4:11-12). We have in this lesson one of the best known of the master's many parables. Like all the rest Jesus draws his picture from the common experiences of life. Jesus uses the fields, the home, etc., while Paul in his preaching and teaching draws from the city, the army, the markets, etc. We have in this picture the seed, the sower and the soil. We must turn to the parable accounts in Luke and Matthew to get the full and the complete picture.

What is the seed? Luke records that Jesus told the disciples that the seed is the word of God (Luke 8:11). Mark also tells us practically the same thing in v. 14 of the lesson. A great deal is being made today of seed selection and some wonderful results have been obtained. How much more important for us who deal with immortal souls that we select the best, viz., the word of God.

Sought Not Adulation.

Next the sower (v. 4). Notice he went forth not to S-O-A-R, nor is it recorded that he was S-O-R-E. He did not have a grouse nor did he enter into his work that he might receive the adulation of men (Matt. 6:2).

It is however the soil that seems to be most emphasized in this lesson, both in the direct teaching and also in the explanation of the parable. There are four kinds of soil and it is also very significant the manner by which the seed came into contact with each kind of soil. "Some fell by the wayside," "The path was well trodden, the ground was preoccupied, e. g., used for other purposes rather than to yield a harvest. It was hard to be broken and hence it was an easy matter for the birds of the air (Satan v. 15) soon to pluck it away. We need to remember that if men receive with meekness the implanted word there will be of course no such opportunity for the evil one. The trouble is that in this case the word was not implanted. Thus it is that one-fourth of the seed is lost. That the result is a deplorable one is shown in Heb. 2:1-4.

The seed in this case fell "by" the wayside, in the next it fell "on" the rocky ground. The first is the picture of the heedless, this is a picture of the superficial ones. Oh for a time they did run well, they even received the word with gladness (v. 16) but they had no stability; they lacked the element of persistence; their surroundings were superficial, there was no chance for the seed to get a real grip upon their lives.

Three Fourths Lost.

In the third place Jesus speaks of seed that fell "among" the thorns. Here in this worldly soil it is not so much the character of the soil as the character of that which already occupied the soil ere the sower sowed the seed. The cares of this world, the deceitfulness of riches and "other things" (v. 19) had so entered in that the good seed never had a real chance in the soil of that human heart, hence it was choked and yielded no fruit. There was no real grip of the will, no whole-hearted surrender. How often these thorns, "the cares of life," keep the housewife, or the business man away from the word. How often the "deceitfulness of riches" snare men so as to choke the word that at one time gave such promise in their lives. And then the "lusts and other things" which the evil one so well knows how to use that he may keep us from the word, for he knows that by it we may be saved (Luke 8:12).

We have thus seen three-fourths of the word lost. Of the remaining fourth which fell "into" (R. V.) the good soil, not all yielded the same return. It all brought forth (v. 7) it all yielded, it all sprang up, but not all in the same ratio. We ought to remember at this point that this parable plainly teaches us that we who receive the implanted seed, we who receive and obey shall in turn become the seed of the kingdom.

There are three distinguishing features of this last class of hearers (1) They "hear" the word. These are the ones who appreciate its value and give good heed to its precepts. (2) They "accept" it, e. g., they understand its teachings, they take it into good and honest hearts, and (3) they "hold it fast" (Luke 8:15 R. V.). These are the ones of which martyrs are made. Thus we see four different soils and four different ways of receiving it. (1) Some "by" the wayside; (2) Some "on" the stony soil; (3) Some "among" the thorns; and (4) Some "into" the good ground.

BYE-BYES

TOPIC FOR JULY 14.

How much should a Christian think of personal appearance? 2 Kings 9:30-35; Ps. 45:7-15.

A clean life does not willingly associate with dirty linen. Cleanliness is neither Godliness nor next to Godliness, but real purity of heart is sure to create a desire for an attractive outward appearance.

An untidy Christian shows lack of regard both for himself and his calling. No reputable commercial house permits itself to be represented by a slovenly salesman. The untidy traveling man creates disrespect for himself and the firm he represents. A Christian's business is to advertise his master. Untidy hair and a soiled collar are poor advertisements for the cleansing gospel of Jesus Christ.

God looketh on the heart, but man looketh on outward appearances. As long as people judge by appearances we should strive to make appearances truthful. We owe it to God that our personal appearance shall speak the gospel to those around us.

An attractive personal appearance is not a matter of "tailors' bills" or "beauty" treatments. It can't be put on from the outside. I can pull a rug over the ink spot on the floor and a stroke or two of the brush will make the wall look right again, but no amount of paint or drapery can successfully cover up a spotted life.

Clothes cannot conceal character. They reveal it. Walk down any busy street and study the clothes the people wear. Every item of dress is a guide post to the person wearing it.

The foundation of attractiveness without is attractiveness within. Outward cleanliness is impossible without cleanliness of heart. "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son, cleanseth us from all sin." That kind of cleansing is essential to permanent good looks.

Other things are important besides personal appearance. A uniform cannot make a ball player. A good label may be attractive, but it cannot change the contents of the bottle.

ENGLAND RAISES ROW OVER CANAL

Says Proposed Legislation Would Violate Treaty.

WANTS CONGRESS TO GO SLOW

British Foreign Office Has Presented Formal Protest Against Proposition to Give American Vessels Advantage of Free Passage Through Panama Canal, and Cites a Specific Clause of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

Washington, July 12.—Whether ships shall have free use of the Panama canal in the face of vigorous objection upon the part of Great Britain or whether the United States is to yield the right to favor ships owned by Americans, is put squarely up to congress in a note from the British embassy received by Secretary of State Knox.

Alfred Mitchell Innes, counsellor and charge d'affaires of the British embassy, followed up his request for a delay in pending canal legislation with a definite and positive statement of the objections which his government entertains to the pending bills. He stated that his government was of the opinion that for the United States to allow American ships to pass through the Panama canal without a payment of tolls as assessed on ships of other nations would be a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. The British government, declared Mr. Innes' note, would consider that the treaty was violated whether tolls were not collected from American ships or whether they were collected and then refunded. The Innes note recited further that as to discrimination in favor of ships engaged in coastwise trade, it would be difficult to frame a provision which would not be regarded as injurious to British interests.

Mr. Innes added that a more extended expression of the views of the British government on the matter of canal tolls would be sent from London at once. In this supplementary document it is expected that the reasoning upon which the British foreign office bases its action will be presented in full.

Secretary Knox forwarded the Innes note to Senator Brandegee, chairman of the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals, which has the Panama canal bills in charge. The secretary declared after thus disposing of the Innes note that the state department has at this time no further part to play in the matter, inasmuch as the entire question was one which concerned the congress alone at this stage of the proceedings.

The Innes note makes no mention of any objection upon the part of Great Britain to the provisions excluding railroad-owned ships from the use of the canal. Nevertheless it is known to be a fact that the action of the British government was in a large part at least inspired by the wishes of the Canadians in regard to the canal.

The seriousness with which the action of the British government is viewed here can hardly be overestimated. There was a disposition in some quarters to criticize Great Britain for seeking unduly to interfere in matters of domestic concern to the United States, yet on the other hand it was pretty generally recognized that matters pertaining to the Panama canal are by no means purely domestic and that England, having a treaty with the United States in regard to a canal through the Isthmus of Panama, is entitled to be heard.

Canal legislation is far from being an accomplished fact. The most impressive fact in the situation, viewed in the light of the complication injected into it by the action of Great Britain, is the lack of unity in house and senate and the administration in regard to canal legislation, and most pronounced is the disagreement in regard to the question of what treatment American ships are to receive.

The basis of the British objections to the free use of the canal lies in the declarations of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty of 1901, in regard to the use of the Panama canal. This treaty, which is the last word on the subject between the United States and Great Britain, recites that: "The canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations, on terms of entire equality, so that there shall be no discrimination in respect to the conditions or charges of traffic, or otherwise."

What an uncomfortable thing it would have been for the patriotic school children if Washington and Lincoln had been born on the same day of the month.

Lough's Ambition Nipped in Bud at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 12.—By securing the election of V. G. Hinshaw of Portland, Ore., as the successor to Charles H. Jones, national chairman for the past seven years, the "stand-pat" following of Jones put down the real progressive move in the national Prohibition convention here, winning out over D. W. Lough, chairman of the Indiana committee, who has been looked upon as sure of coming out ahead. It took five ballots to accomplish the victory.

There was another warm battle between the majority and minority of the platform committee for the adoption of their respective reports. The majority won out after the plank relating to the liquor question had been strengthened. The platform as finally adopted said: "The alcoholic drink traffic is wrong, and, therefore, all laws taxing or licensing a traffic that produces crime, poverty and political corruption and spreads disease and death should be repealed." The platform also declares the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people; presidential terms of six years and one term only; suffrage for women upon the same terms as to man; the absolute protection of the rights of labor without impairment of the rights of capital; an elastic currency system adequate to our industrial needs; the complete and permanent separation of church and state, and the abolition of child labor in mines, workshops and factories.

Woman Is Acquitted.

Richmond, Ind., July 12.—A jury acquitted Miss Beatrice Pearce, charged with drawing a deadly weapon on Mrs. Henry Bookhart. The case had its origin in an episode several weeks ago, when Mrs. Bookhart, believing that her husband was at the home of Miss Pearce, drove to the place, west of Richmond, and demanded that he come out.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

South Bend, Ind., July 12.—Clifford Chartier, aged twelve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Chartier, is dead from a gunshot wound inflicted by his cousin, George Reid, aged five, who did not know the weapon was loaded.

CARRIED FIRE FROM POWDER

Bravery and Presence of Mind of British Soldiers That Averted a Terrible Disaster.

On the taking of Ciudad Rodrigo, in 1812, by the British army under Wellington, Captain William Jones of the 52nd regiment, having captured a French officer, employed his prisoner in potting out quarters for his men. The Frenchman could not speak English, and Captain Jones—a fiery Welshman, whom it was the fashion in the regiment to term "Jack Jones"—knew no French; but dumb show supplied the want of language, and some of the company were lodged in a large store pointed out by the Frenchman, who then led the way to a church, near which Lord Wellington and his staff were standing. But no sooner had the guide stepped into the building than he started back, crying, "Sacre bleu!" and ran out in the utmost alarm. The Welsh captain, however, went on, and perceived that the church had been used as a powder magazine by the French; barrels were standing round, samples of their contents lay scattered on the pavement, and in the midst was a fire, probably lighted by some Portuguese soldiers. Captain Jones and the sergeant entered the church, took up the burning embers brand by brand, bore them safely over the scattered powder, and out of the church, and thus averted the most terrific disaster.

Woodchuck's Name.

One of the most noticeable traits of woodchucks is the throwing up of large piles of dirt in front of their burrows. It is from this practice that the woodchuck got his name. In olden times—probably in the time of Aesop—the lower animals used to live in one happy country with a judge over them, the dog. One day a rabbit whose burrow adjoined that of a marmot complained to the latter that the rabbits' eyes were continually filled with the dirt which he threw out of his burrow. The marmot paid no heed to this remonstrance, and the rabbit was compelled to appeal to the judge. His honor immediately sent word to the offender that greater care must be taken in the future. But the insolent marmot, notorious for his inactivity and indifference, replied to the messenger that he "would chuck" his dirt just where he pleased.

That settled it. The dog has been hunting for the gross offender ever since, and the name "woodchuck" has stuck to the whole tribe of marmots. —Brooklyn Standard Union.

ACT QUICKLY

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Rushville.

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in time of danger. Backache is kidney danger. Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly. Plenty of evidence to prove this.

Harrison Levi, 931 North Sexton street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I have nothing but praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, for they have been of great benefit to me. I was subject to attacks of kidney trouble and no doubt the complaint was brought on by the hardships I endured while in the war. I had severe pains in my back and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. This weakness disturbed my rest and I knew that something must be done. Three years ago Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and procuring a box at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store I began their use. In a short time the backache and kidney weakness disappeared and I was in much better health. I cannot say that I am completely cured, but I know that I can rely on Doan's Kidney Pills for relief. I have previously given a public statement in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills and I gladly endorse them again."

AMERICANS FIND IT EASY TO WIN PRIZES

Still Steadily Scoring in Olympic Games.

Stockholm, July 12.—At the Olympic games yesterday triumph after triumph followed the efforts of the American athletes, and the sting of defeat felt for the first time Wednesday was forgotten in the brilliant successes that added sixteen points to the score of the United States and placed the stars and stripes five points in the lead of all the other nations combined in the track and field events.

In the pole vault America scored another sweeping victory, taking all three places. The first place went to Harry S. Babcock of Columbia university, who cleared 12 feet 11 1/2 inches. All the best vaulters in the world were represented, including Marc S. Wright of Dartmouth, who made the world's record of 13 1/4 inches at the Boston tryouts. The best Wright could do yesterday was to tie with Frank T. Nelson, formerly of Yale, for second place, thus placing all the points to the credit of America.

America's other points were scored in the 200-meter final and in putting the shot with both hands. In the sprint race Ralph C. Craig of the Detroit Y. M. C. A. carried the American shield to victory for the second time, with Donald F. Lippincott, the University of Pennsylvania freshman, in second place. In the shot put with both hands Ralph Rose of the Olympic A. C. of San Francisco, turned the tables on Pat McDonald, his conqueror of the day before, but both beat all the other competitors, so that five more points were added to the United States total.

COMPANY MUST PAY THE BOND

Final Echo of Settlement of Job Nash Estate.

IN COURT FOR THREE YEARS

Judgment Finally Has Been Entered Against Bonding Company Which Registered Settlement on the Bond of Defaulting Trustee of the Estate of One of Lafayette's Wealthiest Citizens.

Lafayette, Ind., July 12.—That the American Bonding company must make good the shortage of James Buck, trustee of the Job Nash estate, is the decision of Judge Hollister in the federal court at Cincinnati. The case has been in the court for three years and has just been decided.

Job Nash died in 1903, leaving $250,000 in a trust fund for the benefit of certain heirs, several of whom live in this city. Buck was trustee for one-half of the fund. When he died it was found that he was short $65,000, which he lost in speculation on the Chicago Board of Trade. He was under bond for $50,000 with the American Bonding company as surety. Suit was brought against this company to recover the amount of the bond, but the bonding company brought suit in return against the other trustee, holding that he was liable for the default of his co-trustee. Judge Hollister has decided the case against the bonding company, and the $50,000 will be paid into the trust fund.

COUNTERFEITING

Ford Freedom, Former Convict, Arrested by Gary Police.

Gary, Ind., July 12.—Hosford Park, a little village now within the south limits of Gary, long the scene of counterfeiting operations, was disturbed when a squad of Gary police, commanded by Chief Martin, swooped down on the settlement and arrested Ford Freedom, an old settler.

Freedom was taken on the charge of counterfeiting and his arrest caused no surprise, as he had previously served time in prison for this offense. With him there went to the police station Henry Racke, thirty-nine years old, who was arrested in Gary earlier and whose information resulted in the arrest of Freedom. Racke, too, has been in prison for counterfeiting, and at the present time the police say, his father and son are at Fort Leavenworth prison, paying the penalty of uttering spurious money.

LICENSE REVOKED

State Board Punishes Illegal Dispenser of Cocaine.

Indianapolis, July 12.—The state board of medical examination and registration has revoked the physician's license of Henry W. Niswonger, a physician and druggist of Fort Wayne, who was tried before the board on a charge of illegally selling cocaine. The members of the state board of pharmacy met with the state board and reviewed the evidence against Niswonger. The pharmacy board will cite Niswonger to show cause why his license as a pharmacist should not also be revoked on the grounds considered by the medical board.

Hammond Is Now a Port.

Hammond, Ind., July 12.—The canal connecting this city with East Chicago and deep water has been cut through. The work of cutting the canal from the main branch of the Indiana Harbor canal has been in progress several weeks. The canal is 200 feet wide and twenty-one feet deep. Work will continue until the channel is cut through to the Calumet river, when the Northwestern Iron company will begin building concrete docks, which will be used for unloading ore.

Trucks Left the Track.

Winchester, Ind., July 12.—An interurban car broke a back axle while running at a rate of forty miles an hour, seven miles east of Winchester. The back trucks left the track, and before the car could be brought to a stop three interurban line poles were broken off at the ground, and electric wires were torn down. Several persons narrowly escaped death by coming in contact with the broken wires.

Their Idea of a Joke.

Bloomington, Ind., July 12.—Albert Liebig, accused of causing the death of George Dumas by forcing compressed air into his body as a "joke," has been arrested on two counts, charging murder in the second degree. Three other men probably will be arrested.

Gary Murderer Escapes.

Gary, Ind., July 12.—The fifth recent murder in Gary's negro quarter occurred when Moses Levy shot and killed Robert Davis. Levy escaped and is believed to have gone to Chicago.

Farming as Fine Art.

In these days, when science is making two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, a word as to the beginning of the new departure in farming may be timely. The beginning may be said to date from half a century ago. It is just fifty years since Lincoln signed the bill which has established agricultural colleges in every one of the forty-eight states. It set apart 10,000,000 acres of the public lands, to be divided among the states in proportion to their representation in Congress. This was made the basis of many of the State universities, especially in the West, where agriculture according to the most improved scientific methods is one of the great fields of study, but where a liberal education on all lines is obtained.

At first this law was called the Morrill act, because Justin S. Morrill was its author. As the New Hampshire statesman was busy in many spheres, however, and had his name prominently associated with several other laws of large consequence, it was necessary to give it a more specific term, and it was called the land grant statute, the agricultural college act and other names which were more or less distinctive. It was one of the many measures by which the government has made agriculture by far the largest activity in its own sphere of any known to the world. No other country closely approaches the United States in the volume and the variety of its farming, stock raising and fruit growing interests. For several years past the annual product of the country's farms and plantations has exceeded $8,000,000,000.

The agricultural college act fol-

Eye Troubles

Brief spells of dizziness, pains in the brow and temples come from eyestrain. Glasses correctly fitted—perhaps just to wear while reading, studying, sewing, or other close work may be all that's required for permanent relief.

Taken in time the constant wearing of glasses is avoided. Delay means serious eye trouble later on, expensive and painful operation or the loss of vision.

lowed a few weeks after the free homes law was signed. Thus June and July, 1862, were landmarks in the development of American farming. The progress in this vast field which has been made in this half a century is stupendous. From the beginning the government has borne a prominent part in this development. It created the Department of Agriculture in 1889, with its head a member of the cabinet. The work of this department and of the agricultural experiment stations costs the government several millions of dollars annually, but this outlay much more than pays for itself. In 1902 the national irrigation act was passed as a supplement to the free homes law of 1862, and under it millions of acres of desert or semi-desert are being transformed into the most productive lands in the world. While much improvement in American farming is still to be made, something along this line has already been accomplished, for the yield per acre, as compared with forty years ago, has increased 20 per cent. for cotton, 25 per cent for corn and 50 per cent for wheat.

Daubiful States.

The nominations of Wilson and Marshall were made on the assumption that New Jersey and Indiana were daubiful states, says the Marion Chronicle. This suggestion came from the fact that Marshall was elected governor of Indiana and Wilson governor of New Jersey. Marshall had a plurality in Indiana of 14,453, but the rest of the republican state ticket was largely successful at the same election. Wilson had a plurality of 49,456, but the legislature was republican, and with the exception of Edward I. Edwards, comptroller, all the state officers are republican. The issues therefore were not of a national character clearly. New Jersey gave Taft a plurality of 82,759 four years ago, and Indiana gave him a plurality of 10,731.

It is not probable that these figures will be materially changed, especially as Marshall has lost much of his popularity and support. New Jersey may vote some "state-pride" votes, not enough to materially affect the result, and New Jersey has been republican on national issues for a good many years. In 1904 New Jersey voted 194,313 republican and 186,300 democratic; in 1906, the vote was 231,363 republican and 179,719 democratic, and in 1908, when Taft ran, 265,326 republican and 182,567 democratic. Bryan was the democratic candidate then, and New Jersey was not a strong Bryan State. Still, the state has been republican for a good many years, and will not likely depart from the republican column. Indiana certainly will not go for Marshall, and so the attempt to capture these two states will not cause any real alarm. New York and New England will vote for Taft, as it now appears, regardless of whether

Sam Sanderson Says:

I've heard of a lot of men falling out of bed, but never of one coughing out.

Roosevelt is a candidate or not, and the danger lies largely in the middle and western states, where Roosevelt may poll enough votes to take some electoral votes from Taft. It is not probable that he will injure Wilson to any extent, as he has already outlined a platform attacking democratic policies, and apparently will make his fight as a republican in principle.

Unit Rule.

While claiming to be progressive and in favor of the people ruling, the Democratic party, as organized and governed today, is the most perfectly boss-ridden political aggregation in this or any other country. Of this claim the Baltimore convention furnished proof.

The unit rule there enforced as an instrument of bossism and reaction was utterly indefensible on any reasonable ground. The whole country looked with amazement and disgust upon the spectacle of ninety delegates from the state of New York and thirty from Indiana sitting like so many dummies and obeying without protest or objection the orders and signs of Boss Murphy of the Tammany gang and Boss Taggart.

It is ridiculous to plead that the abrogation of the unit rule would weaken the doctrine of 'states rights' always a fallacy and shot to pieces in the Civil war. It is purely and simply an imposition on the rank and file of the party, conceived and practiced to make control of the many by the few easier and more certain of the purpose sought to be accomplished and which are invariably in the interest, political or financial, of the bosses, comments the Newcastle Courier.

Democratic leaders, it is stated, will endeavor to keep Professor Wilson off the stump. They are afraid he will make "breaks" that will mar the party's chances. Is a man who is not to be trusted to get through a campaign without applying the soft pedal to his utterance an appropriate candidate for the presidency of the United States, where "breaks" affect the destiny of a hundred millions of Americans for weal or woe?

If the red bandana is to become an emblem in this campaign we can suggest a plan by which the newspaper men can save a great deal of energy—spell it "bandana," as authorized by Webster, a saving of one letter every time the word is used.

The democrats will have to play up Tom Marshall strong to get the vote of Toms, for Woodrow Wilson threw away his "Tom" name as too common and uses only "Woodrow."

The dear, kind weather man again promises "unsettled showers" for tonight and tomorrow.

If you, kind reader, will refresh your recollection, you will probably remember that the imp of Satan, as we, perforce, must term him now, has been predicting—"unsettled" showers every day for the last two weeks.

Yet at the same time, and notwithstanding all of this, we have our mind made up that it has been pretty well settled by the weather several days in advance that we should have showers as we have had.

At the same time we can't see why the farmers should have their own way all the time. They all have an automobile, and what more can they ask

KENTUCKY BILL GETS OUT OF TOWN

Manilla Man Leaves Shelbyville After Enforced Visit of Two Days— Pays Fine.

"GUARDIAN" NOT FAR WRONG

William Downward of Manilla, more familiarly known as "Kentucky Bill," since the furor created in this city Tuesday when he lost a check for $195, which was taken charge of by Phil Miller, the clothier, and turned over to the prosecutor on the theory that William was not in condition to protect his own interests while in possession of so much wealth paid a fine and costs for intoxication in the court of Justice Pryor Thursday after aforesaid check had been duly cashed at one of the local banks and a goodly balance of the proceeds left there on deposit for future use, says the Shelbyville News.

The amount of the fine and cost was nine dollars. Downward had been in jail since Wednesday morning. The police insisted he was not in an irresponsible condition at the time Miller appeared as the guardian angel in the case, but they changed their mind after he and the check had remained in the city over night and Bill was shown the way to a cell by Chief Manlove and Officer Fagel.

After all matters having a tendency to detain him here had been settled satisfactorily he left for Cloverdale. That was where he intended to go the morning he lost the check just as he was leaving the Miller store, where he had purchased a suit of clothes, exhausting all of his ready cash.

WILL SPARKS MAKES TALK

One of Five Attorneys to Deliver Toast at State Meet.

William M. Sparks of this city was one of the five lawyers who gave a toast last evening at the annual banquet of the Indiana State Bar Association at South Bend. Mr. Sparks' subject was "The Present Status," and he had an especially difficult place on the toast list to fill as he followed Stephen S. Gregory of Chicago, president of the American Bar Association. John A. Tittsworth of this city, who attended the banquet, said the Rushville lawyer vied with any attorney who gave a toast.

SOCIETY NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hill of Ripley township announce the engagement of their daughter Marjorie to Warder Clyde Allee of Chicago.

Milroy Press: The picnic given under the auspices of the Country club on July 10 was a success in spite of the rain. A good crowd of our town and country people and several from Rushville and Greensburg enjoyed the fish fry in the evening.

The engagement of Miss Katherine Nading of Shelbyville to Jack Hennessey of Pittsburg was announced yesterday at a party in Shelbyville given by Miss Nading's sister, Mrs. Herbert DePrez, formerly Miss Lillian Nading. Miss Nading is very well known in Rushville and has visited here often.

The members of the Modern Art club celebrated their eighth anniversary in a very appropriate and delightful manner with a lawn party and six o'clock dinner on the beautiful lawn at the corner of Third and Julian streets last night. Each member was entitled to invite one guest, and thirty-five persons enjoyed the delicious food prepared by the members of the club.

Frank Warriek, who is farming the old Silas Hilligoss farm southwest of the city has what is thought to be the best field of corn, size of field considered, in the county. There are twenty-eight acres in the field and in most places the corn completely hides a horse. It is in fine condition also, as Frank will not tolerate weeds in his corn even if it is too wet for plowing.

Carl V Webb is making extensive improvements on his North Perkins street residence. John Crowley has the contract.

"Young lady!" exclaimed Dominick in a tone that indicated anything but pleasurable anticipation. "What young lady?"

"Our young lady," answered the doctor. "Miss Cannon, the Young Lady of Perley's Hotel. Don't you know that's the nicest girl in the world? Maybe you don't, but that's because your powers of appreciation have been dormant for the last few days. The people here were most scared to death of her at first. They didn't know how she was going to get along, used to the finest, the way she's always been. But, bless your heart, she's less trouble than anybody in the place. There's twelve extra people eating here, besides you to be looked after, and Mrs. Perley and Cora are pretty near run to death trying to do it. Miss Cannon wanted to turn in and help them. They wouldn't have it, but they had to let her do her turn here taking care of you."

"It's very kind of her," said the invalid without enthusiasm. "I noticed her here several times."

"And as easy as an old shoe," said the doctor. "Just as nice to Perley's boy, who's a waltz that the Perleys picked up in the streets of Stockton, as if he was the Prince of Wales. I tell you hereditary's a queer thing. How did old Bill Cannon come to have a girl like that? Of course there's the mother to take into account, but—"

A knock on the door interrupted him. To his cry of "Come in," Rose entered, a white shawl over her shoulders, a book in her hand. While she and Dominick were exchanging greetings, the doctor began thrusting his medicines into his bag, alleging the necessity of an immediate departure, as two cases of bronchitis and three of pneumonia awaited him.

"You didn't know there were that many people in Antelope," he said as he snapped the clasp of the bag and picked up his hat. "Well, I'll swear to it, even if it does seem the prejudiced estimate of an old inhabitant. So long. I'll be back by five and I hope to hear a good report from the nurse."

The door closed behind him and Dominick and the young girl were left looking rather blankly at each other. He had a hunted, helpless feeling that he ought to talk to the young woman as gentlemen did who were not burdened by the pain of frozen feet and marital troubles. Moreover, he felt the annoyance of being thrust upon the care of a lady whom he hardly knew.

"I'm very sorry that they bothered you this way," he said awkwardly. "I—I don't think I need any one with me. I'm quite comfortable here by myself," and then he stopped, conscious of the ungraciousness of his words, and reddening uncomfortably.

"I dare say you don't want me here," said Rose with an air of meekness which had the effect of being assumed. "But you really have been too sick to be left alone. Besides, there's your medicine, you must take that regu-

THE FIRST GRAY HAIR SIGN OF AGE

Easy Way to Preserve Natural Color of the Hair and Make It Grow.

A harmless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and lustre, is just as important as to care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion, and yet neglect your hair, when gray hair is even more conspicuous and suggestive of age than wrinkles or a poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden sage and sulphur, combined with other valuable remedies for dry, harsh, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, harmless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color, in a short time the dandruff will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out but will start to grow as Nature intended it should.

Don't neglect your hair, for it goes farther than anything else to make or mar your good looks. You can buy this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle, and your druggist will give you money back if you are not satisfied after using it. Purchase a bottle today. You will never regret it when you realize the difference it will make in your appearance.

STOP SNEEZING AND SNIFFLING

For Hay Fever and Rose Cold Try Ely's Cream Balm. It Gives Gives Instant Relief.

"Balm" is just the word for this soothing, healing, antiseptic Cream. Its effect in cases of Hay Fever and Rose Colds are almost magical. You just grease the nostrils with a little of the Cream, inhale the pleasant, aromatic fumes; and in a few minutes your head begins to clear, the soreness is relieved, and the sneezing, sniffing and weeping stopped. People who have suffered for years with Hay Fever and Rose Cold can be free from all the distressing symptoms by simply using Ely's Cream Balm morning and night during the Hay Fever Season.

Hay Fever is due to an irritated, inflamed condition of the mucous membrane (inside skin) of the nose and throat. Strong powders, snuffs and sprays simply aggravate the trouble, but Ely's Cream Balm soothes, heals and strengthens the raw, sore membranes, and in this way not only relieves the trouble but prevents its return.

All druggists sell and recommend it. Get a fifty cent bottle today—use it according to directions—get your money back if you are not satisfied.

larily."

The invalid gave an indifferent cast of his eye toward the glass on the bureau, guarded by the familiar book and spoon. Then he looked back at her. She was regarding him reproachfully.

"Couldn't I take it myself?" he said.

"I don't think I'd trust you," she answered.

His sunken glance was held by hers, and he saw, under the deprecation of her look, humor struggling to keep itself in seemly suppression. He was faintly surprised. There did not seem to him anything comic in the fact of her distrust. But as he looked at her he saw the humor rising past control. She dropped her eyes to hide it and bit her under lip. This did strike him as funny and a slow grin broke the melancholy of his face. She stole a stealthy look at him, her gravity vanished at the first glimpse of the grin, and she began to laugh, holding her head down and making the stifled, chuckling sounds of controlled mirth suddenly liberated. He was amused and a little puzzled and, with his grin more pronounced than before, said:

"What are you laughing at?"

She lifted her head and looked at

"It Was the Way You Came—Half-Dead Out of the Night as if the Sea Had Thrown You Up."

him with eyes narrowed to slits, murmuring:

"You, trying to get rid of me and being so polite and helpless. It's too pathetic for words."

"It's pathetic, why do you laugh?" he said, laughing himself, he did not know why.

She made no immediate reply and he looked at her, languidly interested and admiring. For the first time he realized that she was a pretty girl, with her glistening coils of blond hair and a pearl-white skin, just now suffused with pink.

"Why did you think I wanted to get rid of you?" he asked.

"You've almost said so," she answered. "And then—well, I can see you do."

"How? What have I done that you've seen?"

"Not any especial thing, but—I think you do."

He felt too weak and indifferent to tell polite falsehoods. Leaning his head on the pillow that stood up at his back, he said:

"Perhaps I did at first. But now I'm glad you came."

She smiled indulgently at him as though he were a sick child.

"I should think you wouldn't have wanted me. You must be so tired of people coming in and out. Those days when you were so bad the doctor had the greatest difficulty in keeping men out who didn't know you and had never seen you. Everybody in the hotel wanted to crowd in."

"What did they want to do that for?"

"To see you. We were the sonstation or Antelope first. But then you came and put us completely in the shade. Antelope hasn't had such an excitement as your appearance since the death of Jim Granger, whose picture is down stairs in the parlor and who comes from here."

"I don't see why I should be an excitement. When I was up here fishing last summer nobody was in the least excited."

"It was the way you came—half-dead out of the night as if the sea had thrown you up. Then everybody wanted to know why you did it, why you, a Californian, attempted such a dangerous thing."

"There wasn't anything so desperately dangerous about it," he said, almost in a tone of sulky protest.

"The men downstairs seemed to think so. They say nobody could have got up here in such a storm."

"Oh, rubbish! Besides, it wasn't storming when I left Rocky Bar. It was gray and threatening, but there wasn't a flake falling. The first snow came down when I was passing the Silver Crescent. It came very fast after that."

"Why did you do it—attempts to walk such a distance in such uncertain weather?"

Dominick smoothed the rug over his knees. His face, looking down, had a curious expression of cold, enforced patience.

"I was tired," he said slowly. "I'd worked too hard and I thought the mountains would do me good. I can get time off at the bank when I want and I thought I'd take a holiday and come up here where I was last summer. I knew the place and liked the hotel. I wanted to get a good way off out of the city and away from my work. As for walking up here that afternoon—I'm very strong and I never thought for a moment such a blizzard was coming down."

He lifted his head and turned toward the window, then raising one hand rubbed it across his forehead and eyes. There was something in the gesture that silenced the young girl. She thought he felt tired and had been talking too much and she was guiltily conscious of her laughter and loquacity.

They sat without speaking for some moments. Dominick made no attempt to break the silence when she moved noiselessly to the stove and pushed in more wood. His face was turned from her and she thought he had fallen asleep when he suddenly moved and said:

"Isn't it strange that I have never met you before?"

She was relieved. His tone showed neither feebleness nor fatigue, in fact it had the freshness of a return to congenial topics. She determined, however, to be less talkative, less encouraging to the weakening exertions of general conversation. So she spoke with demure brevity.

"Yes, very. But you were at college for four years, and the year you came back I was in Europe."

He looked at her ruminatingly, and nodded.

"But I've seen you," he said, "at the theater. I was too sick at first to recognize you, but afterward I knew I'd seen you, with your father and your brother Gene."

IDEAL SILO

Do you know that the cheapest and best Silo and the one that has stood the test for fifteen years, and in the community where they are used, they will not use anything else, is the Silo that the farmer can get at the lumber yard; buy the lumber and cement and have it constructed the same as he would if he were building a house or barn. It is substantial, strong, air proof, cemented on the inside with no wood exposed on the inside and no hoops or iron bands on outside that require loosening or tightening according to the conditions of the weather.

These Silos are being used wherever introduced almost exclusively and there is no patent or commission men to pay, you simply go to the lumber yard, buy your lumber the same as you would to build a house. We will furnish you free of charge a blue print plan and specifications and any carpenter or person handy with tools can put up a Silo.

We can furnish you any number of references, including Van Camp Packing Co., who have two very large ones near Martinsville and Mr. Mason, Supt., Polks Milk Receiving Station at Mooresville, Ind., both of which have large Dairy interests and have had experience with all kinds of Silos.

If you are contemplating building a Silo, it will pay you to investigate the frame and cement plastered Silo. We made a special trip to Martinsville and Mooresville for that purpose and saw quite a number, some of which had been in use for several years, and have no hesitance in saying that we believe that they are the best Silo made and that you will be of the same opinion when you have seen them.

Yours truly,
THE PINNELL & TOMPKIN CO.

It was her turn to nod. She thought it best to say nothing, and waited. But his eyes bent inquiringly upon her, and the waiting silence seemed to demand a comment. She made the first one that occurred to her:

"Whom were you with?"

"My wife," said the young man.

She murmured a vague sentence of comment and this time determined not to speak, no matter how embarrassing the pause became. She even thought of taking up her book and was about to stretch her hand for it, when he said:

"But it seems so queer when our parents have been friends for years, and I knew Gene, and you know my sister Cornelia so well."

She drew her hand back and leaned forward, frowning and staring in front of her, as she sent her memory backward groping for data.

"Well, you see a sort of series of events prevented it. When we were little our parents lived in different places. Ages ago when we first came down from Virginia City you were living somewhere else, in Sacramento, wasn't it? Then you were at school, and after that you went East to college for four years, and when you got back from college I was in Europe. And when I came back from Europe—that's over two years ago now—why then—"

She had again brought up against his marriage, this time with a shock that was somewhat of a shattering nature.

"Why, then," she repeated falteringly, realizing where she was—"why then—let's see—"

"Then I had married," he said quietly.

"Oh, yes, of course," she assented, trying to impart a suggestion of sudden innocent remembrance to her tone. "You had married. Why, of course."

An hour later when the doctor came back she was kneeling on the floor by the open stove door, softly building up the fire. At the sound of the opening door she looked up quickly, and her hands being occupied, gave a silencing jerk of her head toward the sleeping man.

The doctor looked at these both. The scene was like a picture of some primitive domestic interior where youth and beauty had made a nest, warmed by that symbol of life, a fire, which one replenished while the other slept.

CHAPTER VI

In Which Berry Writes a Letter.

The morning after the quarrel Bernice woke late. She had not fallen asleep till the night was well spent, the heated seething of her rage keeping the peace of repose far from her. It was only as the dawn paled the square of the window that she fell into a heavy slumber, disturbed by dreams full of stress and strife.

She looked up at the clock; it was nearly ten. Dominick would have left for the bank before this, so the wretched constraint of a meeting with him was postponed. Sallow and heavy eyed, her head aching, oppressed by a sense of the unbearable unpleasantness of the situation, she threw on her wrapper, and going to the window drew the curtain and looked out.

The bedroom had but one window, wedged into an angle of wall, and affording a glimpse of the green lawn and clipped rose trees of the house next door. There was a fog this morning and even this curtailed prospect was obliterated. She stood yawning drearily, and gazing out with eyes to which her yawns had brought tears. Her hair made a wild brush round her head, her face looked pinched and old. She was one of those women whose good looks are dependent on animation and millinery. In this fixity of inward thought, unobscured in unbecoming disarray, one could realize that she had attained the thirty-four years she could so successfully deny under the rejuvenating influences of full dress and high spirits.

During her toilet her thoughts refused to leave the subject of last night's quarrel. She and her husband had had disagreements before—many in the last year when they had virtually separated, though the world did not know it—but nothing so ignominiously repulsive as the scene of last evening had yet degraded their companionship. Bernice was ashamed. In the gray light of the dim, disillusioning morning she realized that she had gone too far. She knew Dominick to be long-suffering, she knew that the hold she had upon him was a powerful one, but the most patient creatures sometimes rebel, the most compelling sense of honor would sometimes break under too severe a strain. As she trailed down the long passage to the dining-room she made up her mind that she would make the first overture toward reconciliation that evening. It would be difficult but she would do it.

She was speculating as to how she would begin, in what manner, she would greet him when he came home, when her eyes fell on the folded note against the clock. Apprehension clutched her as she opened it. The few lines within frightened her still more. He had gone—where? She turned the note over, looking at the back, in a sudden tremble of fearfulness. He had never done anything like this before, left her suddenly cut loose from her in proud disgust. She stood by the clock, staring at the paper, her face fallen into scared blankness, the artificial hopefulness that she had been fostering since she awoke giving place to a down-droop into an abyss of alarm.

The door into the kitchen creaked and the Chinaman entered with the second part of the daily breakfast cooked especially for her.

"What time did Mr. Ryan leave this morning?" she said without turning, throwing the question over her shoulder.

"I dunno," the man returned, with the expressionless brevity of his race, particularly accentuated in this case, as he did not like his mistress. "He no take blickfuss here. He no stay here last night."

She faced round on him, her eyes full of a sudden fierce intensity which marked them in moments of angry surprise.

"Wasn't here last night?" she demanded. "What do you mean?"

He arranged the dishes with careful precision, not troubling himself to look up, and speaking with the same dry indifference.

"He not here for blickfuss. No one sleep in his bed. I go make bed—all made. I think he not here all night."

His work being accomplished he turned without more words and passed into the kitchen. Bernice stood for a moment thinking, then, with a shrug of defiance, left her buckwheat cakes untasted and walked into the hall. She went directly to her husband's room and looked about with sharp glances. She opened drawers and peered into the wardrobes. She was a woman who had a curiously keen memory for small domestic details, and a few moments' investigation proved to her that he had taken some of his oldest clothes, but had left behind all the better ones, and that the silver box of jewelry on the bureau—filled with relics of the days when he had been the idolized son of his parents—lacked none of its contents.

More alarmed than she had been in the course of her married life she left the room and passed up the hall to the parlor. The brilliant, over-furnished apartment in which she had crowded every fashion in interior decoration that had pleased her fancy and been within the compass of her purse, looked slovenly and unattractive in the gray light of the morning. The smell of smoke was strong in it and the butts and ashes of cigars Dominick had been smoking the evening before lay in a tray on the center table. She noticed none of these things, which under ordinary circumstances would have been ground for scolding, for she was a woman of fastidious personal fastidiousness. A cushioned seat was built round the curve of the bay-window, and on this she sat down, drawing back the fall of thick ecruse lace that veiled the pane. Her eyes were fastened with an unwinking fixity on the fog-drenched street without; her figure motionless.

First Encyclopedia.

The most ancient attempt at what is called in these days an "encyclopedia" was Pliny's "Natural History." This old work, a very high authority throughout the Middle Ages, is really a remarkable production and well deserves the fame that for so many ages belonged to it. Pliny, who died in 79 A. D., was not a naturalist, a physician or an artist, and did not pretend to be the wisest man of his time, yet such was his interest in knowledge that he devoted the leisure hours of a busy public life to compiling the work which did a vast amount of good in the world and paved the way for the comprehensive encyclopedias of the present time.

Enameling.

The process known as enameling is not of modern origin. On the contrary, it goes back to a venerable antiquity. If you will read up on the subject you will learn that excellent enamel is still preserved on some of the bricks that have been found among the ruins of old Babylon and Assyria, which have been placed back as far as the seventh or eighth century B. C. Beautiful glazes were made by the Egyptians as early as the sixth dynasty. The Greeks and Romans were acquainted with the art of enameling, as the museums of the world clearly show. It would pay you to visit such institutions in our own city.

ARCHBALD HAD BUT ONE TO DEFEND HIM

Old Neighbor Proved a Friend In Need.

Washington, July 12.—The house adopted, by a vote of 222 to 1, the thirteen articles of impeachment for high crimes and misdemeanors against Judge Robert W. Archbald, formerly district judge of the United States court for the middle district of Pennsylvania, and now a judge of the United States commerce court. Representative J. O. Parr, Republican, of Scranton, was the only member of the house to vote against the adoption of the articles of impeachment. His was the only speech in defense of Judge Archbald.

After adopting the articles of impeachment the house unanimously adopted a resolution appointing the following representatives as managers on the part of the house to present and press the impeachment in the senate: Clayton of Alabama, Floyd of Arkansas, Webb of North Carolina, Davis of West Virginia, Sterling of Illinois, Howland of Ohio and Norris of Nebraska. Another resolution was adopted authorizing the managers to obtain counsel and incur necessary expenses in handling the case. The message informing the senate officially of the house's action was transmitted today by the clerk of the house, and the managers now await the pleasure of the senate.

While the debate progressed there was a slim attendance in the chamber. Many of the members either went to the ball game or visited the senate to hear Lorimer's defense of himself. Mr. Farr, in defense of Archbald, declared he had known Judge Archbald for thirty years, and had been his neighbor for a long time and that there was no more highly respected and honorable citizen in this district than the judge.

REPUBLICAN RECORDS BURNED

Testimony of George B. Cortelyou, Chairman Republican National Committee in 1904, That Treasurer's Vouchers and Records Were Destroyed, Followed Close Upon Taggart's Similar Admission.

Washington, July 12.—To finance the Roosevelt campaign in 1904, it cost the Republican national committee about $1,800,000. It cost the committee about twice as much, or $3,800,000 to run the campaign of 1900, which resulted in the election of William McKinley.

These totals were disclosed officially for the first time when George B. Cortelyou, who was chairman of the national committee during the Parker-Roosevelt campaign of 1904, appeared as a witness before the senate committee investigating campaign contributions.

Mr. Cortelyou also disclosed the fact that the vouchers and financial records of the 1904 campaign were destroyed by Cornelius N. Bliss in 1907, shortly after he had retired as treasurer of the national committee. Only a day or two before, Thomas Taggart, chairman of the Democratic national committee in this same Parker-Roosevelt campaign, testified that the check-stubs and other documents relating to the financing of the Democratic end of the fight, had been burned. The testimony of Mr. Cortelyou following so closely upon that of Mr. Taggart caused a stir among the senators. Mr. Cortelyou, however, took pains to defend the memory of C. N. Bliss and to declare that he never would have tolerated a single transaction that would not bear the full light of day. Mr. Cortelyou went further and said he was willing to assume full responsibility for anything that was done in the 1904 campaign by the Republican national committee.

Mr. Cortelyou testified emphatically that he had made it a point not to turn any money over to the Republican state committees toward the close of the campaign. He adopted this policy because he wished to keep the Republican national committee free from any possible calumny. But while Mr. Cortelyou was thus taking precautions to prevent any charges that the national committee was throwing out money for improper purposes, President Roosevelt apparently was dickering with E. H. Harriman for the raising of the $260,000 which Harriman has said that he threw into New York state on the eve of the election. Mr. Harriman boasted that it was this $260,000 that carried the day for Roosevelt in New York. Mr. Cortelyou testified that he never had been informed of the raising of this Harriman fund and that he had known absolutely nothing about it until the report came out in the newspapers. This $260,000 never passed through the hands of the national committee, but went direct to the New York state organization. While Mr. Cortelyou gave evidence of a desire to help the committee, they learned little from him of the purse of $1,900,000 raised for Roosevelt. Mr. Cortelyou said the details of raising the money had been handled by Mr. Bliss and that he (Cortelyou) had little or no information in regard to the individual contributors. He could not recall that any of the big corporations had contributed to the Roosevelt fund.

LORIMER'S ANSWER

Among Other Things It Charges, Roosevelt Forces With Corruption.

Washington, July 12.—When William Lorimer arose in the senate to speak in his own defense, he was in the last ditch and facing almost certain expulsion, but the remarkable self-possession and courage he has shown from the beginning of his long fight did not desert him. He turned on his enemies and scored them unsparingly. He attacked President Taft for the attitude he had assumed toward him, flayed the newspaper proprietors who had insisted on the prosecution of his case, and threw a bomb into the Roosevelt camp by charging that the colonel himself would have obtained the nomination at Chicago if his friends could have got it through corruption.

Mr. Lorimer's attack upon Roosevelt was his answer to the speeches against him that Roosevelt has been making up and down the country, but he added to the effectiveness of his argument by sending to the vice president's desk three new affidavits from southern delegates to the Chicago convention. These delegates charge that the Roosevelt people tried to bribe them to vote for the colonel at Chicago.

"These affidavits," thundered Lorimer, stamping down the center aisle of the senate, "have no bearing on my title to my seat, and are introduced by me merely to show the hypocrisy that is running rampant through this country."

The production of the new affidavits was the sensation of the speech.

HALF A MILLION PEOPLE

Will Sing "Star Spangled Banner" at Climax of Cadillac Water Fete, July 22-27, In Detroit When Immense Bombs Are Fired Into the Air, Releasing Millions of Stars, Forming American Flag.

One of the most fantastic and inspiring programs ever devised for a carnival will be brought to a spectacular climax the night of Thursday, July 25, when Cadillac, Detroit's big water fete, reaches its height. The beautiful Detroit river will be fairly ablaze that night to hold spellbound the half million people who will witness the naval parade around Cadillac water court and the fireworks display following it.

The water court is constructed in midriver on piles. Around the court 700 craft of all descriptions will parade. The court will be the centerpiece of the water pageant. It will be 2,000 feet long, 300 feet wide and featured by three immense fountains, illuminated with colored lights. Between the fountains will be enormous Roman galleries, one containing a combined band and orchestra and the other holding the Mendelssohn Singing club of 150 voices. The court is so situated that it can be viewed by 1,000,000 people, and doubtless half that number will be on hand to witness the spectacle and hear the musical program.

For the last number on the program the singers will render "The Star Spangled Banner." At a signal from the leader, who will be in plain sight to the tens of thousands of eyewitnesses on account of the floods of light from powerful searchlights focused on the court from every direction, three sixty-inch bombs will be fired into the air. They will release millions of stars and thirteen red and white stripes, forming in the heavens an immense American flag. That will be the signal for the multitudes to join in singing the chorus of the national anthem.

Following that program a fireworks display will be given to conclude that evening's entertainment. Cadillac begins Monday night, July 23, with a fireworks display representing the vision of Cadillac, founder of Detroit.

GETS ITALIANS FOR BOOTLEGGING

Henry County Sheriff Arrests Two Near Knightstown and They are Bound Over to Court.

VIOLATIONS AT LEWISVILLE

Sam Alberti and Stanislas Branchi, two Italian laborers employed on the Pennsylvania railroad work at Knightstown, were arrested Tuesday night in Knightstown on the charge of bootlegging and were brought to this city by Sheriff K. K. Kirk and Deputy Sheriff Ralph Yost, says the Newcastle Courier. They were committed to jail in default of bond. It is charged that the men peddled beer in Knightstown Sunday. They pleaded not guilty and were bound over to the circuit court and sent to jail.

Sheriff Kirk has been receiving numerous complaints of beer selling at Dunreith and has made an investigation. So far he has found no evidence to justify arrests. However, Tuesday, at Dunreith, he lined up the occupants of the Italian car and made them understand that on receipt of the next complaint he would take every member of the outfit to jail.

The chief source of liquor law violations now comes from Lewisville from the railroad camps there. Sheriff Kirk has two detectives on the job there and expects to make a raid soon.

Mrs. Anna Dougherty left today for her home in Kansas after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Shropshire.

JUSTICE FINED FOR GAMBLING

Lewisville Official, Recently Appointed, Has to Answer Charge of Shooting Craps.

OTHER ARRESTS FOLLOWED

Ira Jackson is Same Person Who Collected Fee From Autoist Who Speeded.

Ira Jackson, the newly appointed justice of the peace at Lewisville, appeared before Squire Burr in Newcastle Thursday and pleaded guilty to the charge of gambling, says the Newcastle Courier. He was fined $5 and costs. The assessment was paid.

Jackson was specifically charged with shooting craps. It is said that he and fifteen or twenty other Lewisville men had a big crap game last Sunday morning in a grove near the town. The matter came to the knowledge of the prosecuting attorney and warrants were issued for the arrests of the participants in the contest.

Jackson's arrest was followed on Thursday by the arrest of Fred Caldwell, Joseph Baird, Porter Bills, Clarence Bunker, and Rufus Syphers on the same charge. The warrants were served by Constable John Stephens of New Castle, and the men gave bond for their appearance before Squire Burr.

Ira Jackson and Marshal Ezra Nelson of Lewisville recently were put in a ridiculous light by their stopping a Cincinnati automobile party and compelling the party to pay $5 for speeding in the town limits, although no charges had been filed against them. Afterwards the automobile owner returned and compelled the return of the money.

WATCH DOG BITES BOY

Carl Nixon is Badly Hurt by Faithful Canine.

While playing with a little chum Carl Nixon, a grandson of Wm. Dunn, who makes his home with his grandfather east of town, stumbled and fell over the old watch dog, says the Andersonville Herald. The startled animal bit the boy in several places, striking its fangs deep into the flesh. The boy's screams brought assistance and it was necessary to pull the dog off him. His wounds are terrible and one arm is badly mangled. Dr. Carter Metcalf was called and gave the boy medical treatment and at present he is reported progressing nicely.

OATS FLATTENED BY STRONG WIND

What Farmers Expected to be Best Crop is Damaged by Weather Conditions.

WON'T STRAIGHTEN TO BE CUT

Although Time For Start of Wheat Threshing is Past no Separators Are Started.

Farmers are greatly concerned about the conditions of their oats, hay and corn, especially the oats. Because of the many rains, the oats have grown tall and rank and are heavy on the ground. The heavy rain of the past few days, accompanied by wind in several instances, bent and twisted the oats to the ground in such a manner that they will not straighten again sufficiently to be cut with a binder, and in some instances a mow-er will not do the work. It is also stated that the oats being so green and rank, they will not fill out and mature properly while on the ground, which is very wet and may cause the oats to mold before they have time to mature.

The probabilities are that there will be considerable loss of the oats crop, and this was the crop the farmers were banking on, too. The acreage is the largest ever planted in this county and the prospect for a banner yield was never better until the wind and rains came.

Much hay has been flattened on the ground, also, and hundreds of tons that were cut down and curing will be practically worthless now since there have been several big rains on it.

Many fields of corn have also suffered from the wind. The corn has had a quick growth and the ground being soft, much of the corn in some localities has been bent to the ground or broken off where it was jointing. Where it is only bent it is said it will straighten again to a certain extent, but it will give considerable trouble at seeding time the coming fall.

Although the usual time to begin wheat threshing is past in Rush county, not a grain of wheat has gone through the separator as yet. In the south part of the county farmers say there will be no wheat threshed for at least ten days.

Some of the farmers are not as yet through cutting their wheat and the continued rains have made the weeds grow so rapidly that much of the wheat is in bad shape. Wheat that was cut several days ago and shocked had so many weeds with it that it has not dried out properly and besides that there has been so much rain the wheat has had little time to dry even if there had been no green stuff in the shocks. Wheat in the shock has been damaged, but the farmers say they are unable as yet to tell the extent of the damage.

Taking into consideration the fact that the wheat crop this year was almost a failure to begin with the outlook is not altogether encouraging.

DANGEROUS AFFLICTION

Frank E. Bowen Attributes Trouble to Careless Barber.

Frank E. Bowen, a resident of Raysville, and well known all along the border line of Henry and Rush counties, is seriously afflicted with what physicians have pronounced a malignant cancerous growth on the left side of his face and mouth, says the Knightstown Banner. Some time since two operations were performed at the Methodist hospital, Indianapolis and portions of his cheek, weighing better than a pound, were removed. Mr. Bowen attributes his affliction to poisoned fingers applied by a careless barber. He is greatly alarmed over his condition, and will make a return trip to the hospital tomorrow for another and he hopes the final operation. The first two operations kept him in the hospital five weeks.

FLY LATE BUT HE ARRIVED ALLRIGHT

FLY SNARES FOUND HELPFUL

While the pesky fly was a little behind schedule time in arriving in Rushville this summer he is here, so swat him. Swat him in season and out and show no mercy, for he is admittedly a disease and death dealing agent. He is here individually and collectively, so swat him individually and collectively according as you may find him. Don't wait for him to get on the wing, but take a pot swat, when opportunity offers.

The late arrival of the fly this summer is rather puzzling and different theories are advanced for the lateness of his arrival. Some hold that the past winter was more deadly to the fly than heretofore while others insist that the large number destroyed in the city last summer accounts for the scarcity of the fly here up to a few days ago. Many of the local merchants placed large fly snares in front of their business houses, last summer and by this way millions, perhaps of the flies were destroyed and millions more prevented. Already some of the local merchants are placing the same sort of fly snares in front of their business houses and doubtless many more will do so shortly.

PHONE TROUBLE SETTLED

Service is Restored at St. Paul After Rumpus.

The telephone situation at St. Paul has again become normal and all persons who were cut off from service have now been connected. The trouble occurred several days ago when patrons refused to pay Dr. Earl D. Jewett their monthly rentals. The plant is owned by Israel D. Jewett and his son manages the plant. Difficulties arose between them and he ordered patrons not to pay rental money to his son. As a result when they refused to do so Dr. Jewett immediately severed connection between them and the exchange.

HOW many of your hard earned dollars go up in ice each year? A great many more than you would like to have, undoubtedly. The "main question" with most of us is how we can best reduce this number of dollars to a minimum. The solution of the problem lies with the refrigerator.

Q The price you pay to-day for a refrigerator is but a small part of the price you will pay in the life time of the refrigerator for ice.

Q It is therefore, economy to buy the best refrigerator—the refrigerator, which because of its scientific construction and superior insulation, will use the least ice and will stand the hardest usage for the greatest number of years.

Let Us Demonstrate the New Iceless Refrigerator which maintains a temperature of 45° without the use of ice.

Special For This Week We offer this week a white enameled Refrigerator, with galvanized wire shelves—and removable ice chamber of 90 lbs. ice capacity for.....$12.75
